Q: Why are there covenants on the title?

A: These are to help ensure that Hanley's Farm is a high quality and coherent living environment where your neighbours share the same vision of quality housing and landscaping as you do. The covenants deal with certain matters between neighbours (i.e. type of use and tree height) or with QLDC (i.e. access to Council infrastructure and services). Your solicitor will need to review these covenants and consent notices and discuss them with you.

Q: Why are there Design Control Guidelines?

A: To ensure all neighbours in Hanley's Farm share the vision of a high quality residential development, while also protecting Hanley's Farm's natural environment, views and semi-rural character.

Q: Am I able to on-sell a bare section?

A: There is a covenant on the title which does not allow a purchaser to on-sell a bare section without the express permission of the developer. If you wish to resell for some reason, then you must offer your section back to the Developer, who will then resell this on your behalf. You cannot resell without the Developers consent to do so.
